Tony Wadsworth, BPI Chairman and former Chairman & CEO, EMI Music UK & Ireland, has written MusicTank's fourth industry report.

The report draws from the quarter century Tony has spent on the frontline of the record business - including the most tumultuous decade in its history. It defies much of the accepted wisdom and reveals the latest thinking on the evolution and future of the record company through conversations with some of the sector's top executives.

Wadsworth will unveil the report on Friday 13 May at the Great Escape Festival in Brighton, during an afternoon keynote hosted by MusicTank, ahead of its publication on Monday 16th May.

Said John Reid, CEO, Warner Music Europe & International Marketing "The music industry continues to evolve and record companies are at the heart of that change - nurturing the latest talent, forging new ways to reach fans and creating exciting music experiences. Tony's knowledge and insight means he is well-placed to explore these themes and articulate emerging trends too."

Commented Keith Harris, Chairman MusicTank "I am delighted that Tony agreed to write this report for MusicTank and it will provide some food for thought about the way forward for recorded music."
